

Task 3

Independently create phrasal power of three(s) for the scenarios outlined below. If you have completed task 2, some of these scenarios might match some of the sentences that you have already created. If this is the case, you can use what you have already done as support, but in order to challenge yourself, you will need to think of your own independently.

The sentences that you create here will need to be more specific for your imagined character that you are writing your letter as.

For this activity you will have a scenario that you will then need to express using a power of three.

For example, the first scenario is- The war had caused you to lose things in your life that were special to you.

POT- After the war, I lost my job, I lost my family and I lost all that I own.

-Your life has been hard.

-You are tired and exhausted due to fighting for your country.

-You have great skills to offer.

-You can benefit the school.

-You are grateful for the opportunity.
